Excuse me. We'd like to offer you back your hair.

Dear Friend,

Are you one of the very few men who has made it into middle age, or even later middle age, with his hair intact?

Do you enjoy today the same thick, vigorous thatch growing all over your head that you were so proud of during the seventies?

If you do, then 'Well done!' You are in a minority much envied by the rest of us.

It's far more likely, however, that you are WITH the rest of us, and that you have less hair on your head now than then, and that the hair you do have is far thinner than the thick, healthy locks you remember combing just a few years ago.

The good news is... it's normal.

Unlike so many signs of wear and tear that overtake us as we get older, thinning and losing hair are an absolutely normal part of men's biology.

The hair loss is an outward sign of entirely expected hormone change that happens as you age.

It's not a sign of any illness nor the onset of any other problem.

That doesn't, of course, make losing your hair a pleasant experience. For most of us it has a negative psychological effect, reducing our self esteem, making us feel that people see us as ageing and as less attractive than we used to be.

The GREAT news is, there really is something you can do about it.

In your father's and grandfathers' time, men had to accept thinning hair as a fact of life.

Even today, a surprising number of men assume it's something they simply have to live with.

But the truth couldn't be more different.

The breakthrough in scientific understanding that changed men's heads for ever.

Within the last few years, biological knowledge and understanding have increased greatly.

One of the most prolific areas for research carried out in American medical schools has been that of hair loss, and how it works.

The breakthrough understanding that this has given us, is that the vast majority of 'male patten hair loss', as Doctors call it, is caused by your body making too much of a substance called DHT.

DHT is a normal component of your system and, in your younger life, was responsible for some of the signs of virility you valued greatly.

As you've aged, however, an enzyme called 5 Alpha Reductase has begun to combine with the testosterone in your body, to make too much DHT.

This extra DHT then attaches itself to something called Androgen Receptors in the follicles of your hair.

The effect of this is to reduce the width of the follicle itself, as well as to decrease the amount of time that each hair is actually allowed to remain on your head in its growth phase.

The bottom line is...you get less hair, and thinner hair... and that's what causes your scalp to show through.

The unspoken effects of losing your hair.

As men, we tend not to be very good at talking about our looks, or how we feel about ourselves.

It seems vain and, well, unmanly.

But the truth is that EVERYONE is susceptible to feelings of self doubt. Hair loss makes us feel less confident about our appearance, our health, the way our employers and colleagues see us, the way our partners see us and, if we're honest, about whether we might still be considered attractive by the opposite sex.

As a result, as well as affecting your appearance, losing your hair can actually contribute to a build up of psychological stress and worry of far greater significance to your overall health.

Science identified the cause. Now science has identified the 100% natural treatment.

For once, this really is a story with a happy ending.

The research work done by the American medical study centres that uncovered the real and provable cause of hair thinning and eventual loss, has also produced a treatment technology which has already changed the lives of thousands and thousands of men.

Men just like you. Men whose hair had started to thin, but is now growing back thicker, and more vigorously than they'd dreamed possible.

Growing back? Are we serious?

We couldn't be more serious.

Using a 100% natural formulation, which is called Minoxamax for Men here in the UK, this revolutionary treatment slows down the 5 Alpha Reductase enzyme, so that less of the troublesome DHT is produced. Just like when you were younger.

The treatment ALSO blocks the Androgen Receptors so that the DHT that is present is unable to bind to your follicles.

The follicles are then also activated properly, and the growth of hair induced, with proper time in the growth cycle now allowed for the hair to reach maturity.

You see the difference in weeks. And so does everyone else!

I can assure you Minoxamax for Men won't leave you unsure of whether you're really experiencing a benefit or not!

With Minoxamax for Men you'll experience the same remarkable thickening and regrowth of your hair that thousands of men have already experienced. Your colleagues, friends and family will notice that you're looking fitter, healthier and younger than you have for years.

Yet because it's a 100% natural process, there's nothing 'odd' about it! You simply look more like you did 2, 5 OR EVEN 10 years ago.
